Department of Educational and School Policies aims to promote the growth of children and support families by offering special moments and places dedicated to the interaction between children, between parents, and between adults and children.

Time for Families is a special program for early childhood where children aged 0 to 3 years can meet new friends to play with, and the adults accompanying them have the opportunity to engage with their little ones in play experiences and reflect, together with other adults, on how to address educational questions. At each location, an educator is always present to welcome families, nurture the quality of relationships, and offer engaging play and experimentation proposals in a social context attentive to the growth of children and adults together.

Target Audience

Families with children from birth to three years old. Mothers, fathers, grandparents, aunts, uncles, and trusted family members have the opportunity to accompany children in the educational experiences of "Time for Families."
